Annual Report

CITY-BG-059356

Arrests

Total arrests decreased by 15.2 percent between 2000 and 2001. Non-index arrests—which decreased by 19.0 percent—were 3.5 times as common as index arrests, and therefore led the overall decline. Index arrests decreased by 5.2 percent, as compared to a decline of 6.7 percent in index offenses themselves (Fig. 4d., page 11).

Notwithstanding the overall decrease in arrests, there were increases with respect to specific crime categories. Among index crime arrests, these included criminal sexual assault and robbery. Non-index arrests which increased included involuntary manslaughter/reckless homicide, forgery and counterfeiting, weapons violations, gambling, liquor law violations, and traffic violations.

Allegations of Misconduct

Allegations of misconduct by Department members are investigated by the Internal Affairs Division (IAD), or, in the case of complaints alleging excessive force or off-duty domestic disputes, by the Office of Professional Standards (OPS). A Complaint Register (CR) number is issued whenever a complaint is received. Each complaint is investigated, and a determination is made as to whether there is sufficient evidence to sustain the allegation and take disciplinary action.

Arrests

Total arrests were essentially stable between 2001 and 2002 (0.3 percent increase). The 237,706 arrests in 2002 included 41,490 for index offenses (17.5 percent) 172,812 for non-index offenses (72.7 percent), and 23,404 on outstanding warrants (9.8 percent). Warrant arrests appear to have shown the greatest numeric and percentage increase between 2001 and 2002. However, these arrests were not broken out separately for all of 2001, resulting in a lower-than-actual count for that year.

In contrast, arrests for theft, the largest single arrest category, showed the largest numeric and percentage decrease between the two years, down by 5,164, or 21.8 percent. (Theft offenses themselves declined by 1.5 percent in the same period.)

Arrests

Total arrests were essentially stable between 2002 and 2003 (0.5 percent increase). The 238,961 arrests in 2003 included 38,681 for index offenses (16.2 percent), 175,339 for non-index offenses (73.4 percent) and 24,941 on outstanding warrants (10.4 percent). Among index offenses, arrests for manslaughter by negligence increased by a substantial percentage, but the numbers involved were small. All other index category arrests decreased, the largest numeric decrease in occurring larceny-theft arrests (1,243), and the largest percentage decrease, in motor vehicle theft arrests (-11.9 percent).

Non-index crime arrests showed more variability as far as increases and decreases. The largest numeric increase was in regard to narcotics violations (1,590) and the largest percentage increase, gambling (156.4 percent). Arrests for simple battery showed the largest numeric decrease between 2002 and 2003 (1,748). Although arson showed the largest percentage decrease, the numbers involved were small. Among categories with substantial numbers of arrests, the greatest percentage decrease was in vandalism arrests (-15.8 percent).

Total arrests increased by 2.2 percent between 2003 and 2004. The 244,193 arrests in 2004 included 36,146 for index offenses (14.8 percent), 180,446 for non-index offenses (73.9 percent), and 27,601 on outstanding warrants (11.3 percent). Total index crime arrests decreased by 6.6 percent, with a range of 1.4 percent (arson) to 11.8 percent (motor vehicle theft) among the six individual categories which showed a decrease. In two index crime categories—robbery and aggravated assault/battery—the number of arrests was essentially stable between 2003 and 2004 (less than one percent increase each).

Total non-index crime arrests increased by 2.9 percent between 2003 and 2004, with a range of 1.2 percent (criminal sexual abuse) to 9.8 percent (prostitution) among the individual categories which showed an increase. Some non-index categories showed a decrease. The largest among these was in regard to manslaughter by negligence (46.4 percent) but the numbers involved were small. Other, noteworthy decreases were arrests for offenses against family and children (15.4 percent), forgery and counterfeiting (14.0 percent) and fraud (13.3 percent). Arrests for weapons violations and driving under the influence were essentially at their 2003 levels (less than one percent change each).

Arrests

Total arrests decreased by 2.3 percent between 2004 and 2005, bringing the number of arrests to their 2003 level. The 238,636 arrests in 2005 included 34,544 for index offenses (14.5 percent), 177,514 for non-index offenses (74.4 percent), and 26,578 on outstanding warrants (11.1 percent). The foregoing percentages are all within a point of their 2004 counterparts. Total index crime arrests decreased by 4.4 percent, with a range of 2.9 percent (arson) to 11.3 percent (murder/non-negligent manslaughter) among the six individual categories which showed a decrease. In two index crime categories—robbery and aggravated assault/battery—the number of arrests increased, by 5.7 percent and 1.2 percent, respectively.

Total non-index crime arrests decreased by 1.6 percent between 2004 and 2005, with a range of 1.6 percent (narcotics violations) to 24.1 percent (prostitution) among the individual categories which showed a decrease. Some non-index category arrests showed an increase. The largest among these was in regard to manslaughter by negligence (33.3 percent), but the numbers involved were small. Other, noteworthy increases were arrests for vandalism (14.0 percent) and gambling (8.6 percent).
